

Colette leads the way to a Coast's Bold Future

WOMEN with brains as well as beauty gathered for lunch at the Paradise Room of the Gold Coast Arts Centre on Friday for the 2007 Women in Leadership Lunch.

As Colette McCool, winner of the 2007 Telstra Business Women's Award for IBM Community and Government, was guest speaker a symbolic green carpet was rolled out to represent the environment.

This lunch is always a good chance for the women in business to network and get their message across to other like-minded souls.

But this was a day for Colette, who is Director of Community Services at the Gold Coast City Council and who holds one of the most challenging positions in local government in Australia, to get her message across for the new Bold Future campaign.

By the way, Colette is responsible for more than 650 staff and an annual budget of $248 million.

Bold Future will develop a blueprint for the Gold Coast for the next three decades and the best thing is that you, yes, you the ordinary citizen of the Coast, can have your say.

Just log on to www.boldfuture.com.au for times and places to attend a city forum and put your ideas across for the future of our city.
