

THE Gold Coast's beautiful beaches are a key concern for many residents, who are helping Council to shape the city by sharing their views for its future direction.

More than 10,000 people so far have responded to Council's Bold Future survey, outlining their vision for the city for the next 30 years.

Among those are members of the Gold Coast Girls Board Riders Club, whose 30 members range in age from five to 60 years.

The club, launched in 2000, nurtures young, female surfers by staging competitions to help give them a head start in achieving a professional surfing career.

It also provides women with the opportunity to enjoy leisure activities together, and to surf in a fun, safe and friendly environment.

The club's concern for the future of the environment prompted members to have a say in the Bold Future survey so beaches will continue to be respected and kept clean for future generations to enjoy.

Club President Adriana Fugazzotto has urged other beach lovers to have their say on the Bold Future of the beaches.

To have your say on the future of our beaches, register at www.boldfuture.com.au

